HB HJ16

Mr. Chairman and committee members, I am Bob Lane, Chief Legal Counsel of Montana Department of Fish, Wildlife & Parks (FWP).

The criminal code, including penalties, for hunting, fishing and trapping violations is intertwined with the general statutes granting administrative and civil authority to the Department and Fish, Wildlife & Parks Commission. Partly because of this and partly because the wording and structure of the criminal provisions have grown unwieldy, the criminal statutes and penalties in Title 87 need to be rewritten and reorganized. FWP supports the intent of HJR 16.

Many, including practitioners, judges, and citizens find the criminal codes in Title 87 difficult to use. FWP has heard from members of the legal profession, including judges and magistrates, that the difficulties in dealing with the organizational makeup of Title 87 creates problems in the speedy and appropriate application of justice in fish, wildlife and parks criminal cases.

The issue is how to accomplish this. A recodification of Title 87 will not do it. Recodification means to arrange, rearrange, and correct punctuation and grammar. Title 87's criminal provisions need to be rewritten.

Other revisions of the criminal code, civil procedure codes, etc., have been guided and overseen by a committee or commission organized through the Montana Supreme Court. This would require some funding. A letter is attached that outlines how the Montana Criminal Code was rewritten in 1973.

RE: Recodification of the Fish and Game Code (Title 87)

Dear Magistrate Seiffert:

Thank you for your September 30, 2004 letter concerning Title 87 recodification. I agree that it would be very beneficial to have a recodification of Title 87, the Fish and Game Code, and would support such an effort. There is no doubt this effort will require substantial legal review and organization and we recommend efforts be focused for the 2007 Legislative session. Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks (FWP) are currently working with the Attorney General's office and will submit a bill for the revision of our Title 87 Felony possession law in the 2005 Legislative session.

It may be possible to use the model of the Criminal Law Revision Commission that brought the new Criminal Code to the 1973 Legislature. Enclosed is a copy for your review.

The Criminal Law Revision Commission was a commission appointed by the Supreme Court (about 10 members). One of the Justices was the Chairman and one of that Justice's Clerks was assigned as the staff person working from Missoula with the Reporter of the Code. The Reporter was a law professor from the Law School in Missoula.

Possibly the Judicial Branch would be interested in a similar sponsorship for the Fish and Game Code but, of course, FWP would be a willing partner with staff participation.

Sincerely

M. Jeff Hagener
Director
